To show "heroism" and "patriotism" for the shams that they are - hollow, worthless grandstanding. You saw "patriots" throw innocent children down wells during the war, and "heroes" sell out their friends for cans of soup.

COLD CITY CHEAT SHEET

CONFLICT (P.44)

Choose the most appropriate attribute. Your attribute score is the initial pool of d10s.

Does the conflict involve one of your hidden agendas? Double your attribute score.

Do you have a positive trait that can be applied? Add one for each.

Do you have a negative trait that can be applied? Subtract one for each.

Does your trust for another character come into play? Add the trust rating.

STAKES (P. 45)

Each side should set clear stakes about what they want as an outcome of the conflict.

HELPING (P.48)

You can add your attribute rating to another player's roll. The lead normally takes all the consequences, but in combat, the helpers take one level less of consequences.

LEVEL OF SUCCESS (P.50)

The number of dice in your roll that are higher than your opponents highest roll is your level of success.

Successes	Degree	Consequences
One	Slight	None
Two	Standard	1
Three	Substantial	2
Four	Superior	3
Five	Superlative	4

Both sides receive consequences, but the winners are positive and the losers are negative. If the winner is using a weapon, the loser will receive additional consequences in the form of damage.

CONSEQUENCES (P.52)

Positive

Turn a - trait into a +.

Add a new + trait.

Temporarily raise an attribute.

Negative

Turn a + trait into a -.

Add a new - trait.

Temporarily lower an attribute.

DAMAGE (P.56)

Object	Damage
Small hand weapon	+1
Large hand weapon or pistol	+2
Submachinegun	+3
Assault rifle	+4
Rifle	+5
Shotgun or machinegun	+6

With a weapon, you still need at least one success before you can apply the damage bonus for additional consequences.
